

FINDS AUSTRIANS ARE WEARY OF WAR

D. T. Curtin Says Ruling Class of Dual Monarchy Has Difficult Task.

FOOD CRISIS IS SERIOUS

American Observer Asserts Suffering Is Greater Than in Germany.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun from the London Times.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—D. Thomas Curtin, the American who has been writing a series of articles on internal conditions in Austria during a long sojourn in Germany, shifts to Austria-Hungary in an article published in the Times to-day under the title "The Austrians: A War Weary People."

"Two years ago I was constantly informed in London that the collapse of Austria was imminent," he writes. "Austria is suffering and is severely sick of the war, but I have seen no real sign of the much wished for eventuality."

"Food conditions in Austria vary more than in Germany. Vienna is not so well provisioned as Berlin, but the richer classes are not suffering, the land owners are living very much their ordinary life, to the extreme dissatisfaction of their poorer brethren."

Food Question Foremost.

"The food question is the universal topic of conversation in Austria-Hungary. In Vienna there are three meat-days a week, in Budapest there are two. Meat is often unobtainable and the rise in prices has been greater than in Germany and the shortage of fat worse. "The population are cursed with innumerable taxes and regulations which annoy and irritate them. Bitterness has been caused by the tyrannical conduct of the German supply association, which compels the Austrians and particularly the Hungarians to supply quantities of eggs, vegetables, lard and butter each month."

The writer describes the interview Field Marshal von Hindenburg gave recently to the Vienna Neue Freie Presse as the usual propaganda with the special purpose of bracing Austria, and then proceeds to the subject of losses.

Tonnes Lost Tremendous.

"Take, for example, the legal profession. Lawyers here are surprised when I tell them that whole legal firms in Germany have been wiped out. Take the universities. I have read recently from Oxford and Cambridge, whose patriotism has been proved by those rolls of honor, but the sad lists do not approach those of the Germans. The German Social Democrats and a great part of the public decline to believe the figures that are given out, saying that the real figures probably are twice those admitted. Certainly the Somme and Verdun losses are greatly underestimated."

"The Austrian losses are issued in most fragmentary form, but are known to be terrible. They cause the depression to be found underneath the artificial gaiety of Vienna. Without desiring to detract from the noble spirit of your Russian allies, it should be understood that their prisoners include many entire regiments, guns, ammunition and officers, who surrendered."

"The Bohemian regiments, for instance, are warm sympathizers with the Allies, and are more anxious to fight against Germany than against Russia. The Hungarian losses are appalling. I doubt whether any nationality has suffered more heavily. To the surprise of the Germans the Hungarians have shown themselves fine fighters."

The Hunt for Gold.

Mr. Curtin describes the gold hunt in Germany and Austria, also the hunt for rubber, copper and, lastly, for leather, and continues:

"At least one-third of Austria's famous great bells have gone already to the Skoda works for munition purposes. The Germanic powers pretend that they are not particularly in need of copper, that they have a store sufficient for three years. I would like to ask why they stripped the copper roof from the beautiful Rathaus at Bremen.

"The causes of Austrian dissatisfaction with Germany are not understood in England. They are not voiced because the Austrian Reichsrath has been silent since the beginning of the war, kept closed because the Government and the ruling classes, especially the Emperor, dare not trust a meeting of the thirty-three members of that polyglot empire."

"The Austrians, who placed reliance in Prussian leadership, feel that they have been used as a cat's paw. A Hungarian Deputy told me that the Austrians would gladly give Italy the Trentino if they could hold Trieste. Austria is in a mood to give up anything. That is in part the reason for the Hindenburg interview."

"Prussia holds the Austrians in extreme contempt. German officers frequently refuse to return the salutes of Austrian officers. I can hardly say anything stronger than that. Germany affects to regard Austria as a millstone around her neck, when in reality Austria has been the buffer state and has received most of the blows. Austria is utterly weary of the war."

100 VOLUNTEER FOR FRANCE.

Leland Stanford Undergraduates Offer Services to Ambulance Corps.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—One hundred Leland Stanford University men, undergraduates for the most part, volunteered to-day for service in France with the American ambulance corps. Forty-eight signed up definitely for service, the other fifty-two have yet to obtain the consent of their parents.

Expenses are to be paid by a group of wealthy San Francisco people. The terms of service will be six months or more.

British News Accessible in Berlin.

BERLIN, by wireless, Nov. 4.—A report which had gained currency in Europe that recently all British newspapers had been prohibited in Germany was denied to-day by the Overseas News Agency. Since the beginning of the war, the news agency says, all British newspapers invariably have been accessible to the German nation.

BRITISH SHIPS COLLIDE IN NORTH SEA; 92 LOST

Both Vessels Sink at Once and Only Two Persons Are Saved.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—In one of the worst cases ever known in the Irish Sea, the London and Northwestern Railway Company's steamship Connemara, with passengers and a cargo of cattle from Greenmore, Ireland, for Holyhead, Wales, had a collision last night just outside the Carlingford bar with the British steamship Retriever, laden with coal. Both vessels sank immediately.

The loss of life aggregates ninety-two. Only two persons are known to have been saved. The crew of the Retriever numbered thirteen, one of whom and also one passenger of the Connemara were saved.

There were fifty passengers and crew of thirty-one on the Connemara. There were no Americans on board.

The weather was so rough that it would have been impossible to launch any boats even had time permitted. The two vessels lie partly submerged within sight of land. Heavy seas are breaking over them.

The Connemara, 1,106 tons gross and 272 feet long, was built in Dumbarton in 1898. The Retriever was 190 feet long, of 674 tons gross and was built in Goolie, England, in 1909. She was owned by the West Coast of America Telegraph Company of London.

Much Snow in Adirondacks.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Reports from the north say that much snow fell in the lower Adirondacks region last night. At Northville and Gouverneur there was a considerable flurry. The fall was heavier further north, and at Perkins Camp about an inch covered the ground. Further back there was a depth of about two inches, and hunters had to wallow in slush.
